

Jonathan Duggins

Teaching Assistant Professor, Department of Statistics

Undergraduate Professional Partnership Program Coordinator

College of Sciences

I have been a faculty member in the Department of Statistics for five years. In addition to teaching and serving on committees within my own department, I have served on the COS Teaching Awards Selection Committee multiple times and on university-level hiring committees. I also coordinate a program within the Department of Statistics focused on securing internship opportunities for undergraduate students. Having worked in industry and academia, I am a staunch proponent of the shared governance model and believe that I can contribute to make this a better work environment for all faculty, regardless of track, rank, or discipline.
