

Tamah Morant
Teaching Professor
Department of Economics
Poole College of Management

Tamah Morant has been with North Carolina State University and the Poole College of Management since 1999 when she came on board as assistant director of graduate programs in economics. She held that role for several years before moving into the role of Director of Graduate Programs in Economics, a position she held for eight years. She recently held the position of Associate Dean for Undergraduate Programs in Poole where she managed undergraduate academic programs and all undergraduate student services. In January 2020, she returned to the economics faculty as a Teaching Professor of Economics. She has contributed in many ways to university service including multiple terms as Poole representative for CUE (a position she currently fills for the college), multiple terms on the University Admissions Committee (currently she is chair of that committee), several years on the Graduate Studies Administrative Board, plus service on many other college and university committees and initiatives. She is also a trained NCBI facilitator and certified yoga instructor.
