ANNOUNCEMENTS

1. The African American Cultural Center, Pride Center, Multicultural Student Affairs, and Women's Center will host several events to celebrate Kwanzaa from November 10-17. The events conclude with the Feast of Faith, which is open to students, staff, faculty, and community members. This year, we will have a keynote by Jae Edwards entitled Time to Live and Love in Our Blackness; Fall 2023 graduates will also be honored. For more information, please visit go.ncsu.edu/kwanzaa.
2. Rise Against Hunger (formerly Stop Hunger Now), an organization focused on ending world hunger, is celebrating its 25th anniversary. One way they work toward their goal is hosting meal-packing events; over the years, NCSU has partnered with Rise Against Hunger to package over 3 million meals for school lunch feeding programs around the world. Members of the campus community are invited to help them reach the goal of packaging 250,000 meals in honor of their anniversary on November 17-19, with shifts all weekend long. To register to participate, please visit <http://events.riseagainsthunger.org/25th/GoPack>.
